CARR, Commissioner:

O P I N I O N

Asbury Truck Company, by complaint filed on April 28. 1934 (Case No. 3799) charges E. R. Ball, E. E. Ball, R. W. Futhey, Howard C. Waggener, Charles Kyne, K. E. Browne, Emma C. Lauderbach, Catherine Frisbee, Mrs. A. C. Dotts, (1) and Peter Boy, doing business under the fictitious name and style of Oil Well Express and/or Oil Well Express Corporation, Oil Well Express, a co-partnership, and Oil Well Express Corporation with common carrier operations by auto truck between Los Angeles and adjacent territory on the one hand, and Bakersfield, Taft, Maricopa, Kettleman Hills, McKittrick, Coalinga, Avenal, Devil's Den, and other points within the lower San Joaquin Valley on the other hand; and between Los Angeles and adjacent territory on the one hand and oil fields located in Ventura and Santa Barbara Counties on the other hand, all without a certificate or operating right therefor. The same complainant, by complaint filed on August 1, 1934, charges B. L. Mikesell and Pacific Shippers Association with like operations.

The two cases were consolidated and heard together, hearings being had on September 25, 26, 27 and 28, 1934.

The trucking service here attacked in these two cases has been before this Commission before. On April 27, 1931 in Hodges vs. Ball, et al., 36 C.R.C. 197, the Commission found that E. R. Ball and F. E. Hayes, as co-partners under the name of Oil Well Express were operating a common carrier trucking service between Los Angeles and contiguous territory and certain San Joaquin Valley oil fields without a certificate therefor and they were ordered to cease and desist from such operations.

^{1.} The complaint was dismissed on motion of complainant as to Mrs. A. C. Dotts.

On April 18, 1932 E. R. Ball, by Decision 24692, was adjudged guilty of contempt in disobeying the cease and desist order. On July 25, 1932 the Supreme Court denied a petition for a writ of review of such contempt adjudication (Ball vs. Reilroad Commission, L.A. No. 13782) and on November 10, 1932 the District Court of Appeals discharged a writ of habeas corpus and remanded Ball to the custody of the sheriff. (Re E. R. Ball on Habeas Corpus, 127 Csl. App. 433.) On May 28, 1934, by Decision No. 27099 E. R. Ball was again adjudged guilty of contempt for disobedience to such cease and desist order. He applied to the Supreme Court for a writ of review of the order finding him guilty of the second contempt and the application was denied on October 8, 1934. (E. R. Ball vs. Reilroad Commission, L. A. No. 14962.)

The trucking service involved in these two cases is both regular and substantial in volume. Daily, except Sundays, trucks leave the Los Angeles dock at 4450 So. Main Street for the oil fields in the lower San Joaquin Valley and for the coast fields in Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties. Back hauls are handled. Some 150 shippers patronize the service. This year the gross business has averaged not less than $6000 per month. Shipments are handled on standard bills of lading, which in some instances at least are furnished to the shippers for their use. Shipments are received and transported by using the facilities of various individual truck owners or operators who are paid and receive for their services and the use of their trucks 75% of the over-all transportation charges. Regular schedules of charges or rates are assessed and collected. The service is carried on under the names of Oil Well Express Corporation and Pacific Shippers Association. The bulk of the business is conducted under the name of Oil Well Express Corporation. Only about twenty-five shippers are, as to their business, billed under the name of Pacific Shippers Association.

After the operations of Ball and Hayes under the name of Oil Well Express were ordered discontinued, Oil Well Express Corporation was organized and operations continued from the same place and in the same manner, except that "contracts" with "Oil Well Express" were converted into "contracts" with "Oil Well Express Corporation." Some dummy incorporators were used. In a short time these were replaced as directors and officers, so that for some time R. W. Futhey and B. L. Mikesell have constituted the only officers. No stock was issued. It is claimed that Futhey put $300 in the business and has gotten it back and that Mikesell put $600 in which she has not gotten back, and that these two are entitled to share equally in any profits. Futhey has been and is on the payroll at the rate of 60 cents an hour. Mikesell is a bookkeeper. At first her wages were $60 a month, later they were raised to $80 and at present they are $100. E. R. Ball received the highest compensation of any one on the payroll until July 1, 1934 when he is claimed to have left. Until that time Ball was the only one authorized to sign checks. Since then Mikesell has signed checks in the name of Oil Well Express Corporation.

Pacific Shippers Association⁽²⁾ was organized in the spring of 1933. As with the Oil Well Express Corporation, dummy incorporators were employed. Shortly after, however, Mikesell, Futhey and Norma Smith (Mrs. Mikesell's sister) appeared as the officers. E. R. Ball for some time signed checks for the corporation. Neither Futhey, Mikesell nor Ball receive compensation from Pacific Shippers. While Pacific Shippers Association collects from shippers the same rates as Oil Well Express Corporation and has a "contract" with Oil Well Express

^{2.} In form this organization was similar to that of Imperial Valley Merchants Association, the operations of which were held to be unlawful in Regulated Carriers, Inc. v. Imperial Valley Merchants Association, Decision 26579 of date Nov. 25, 1933.

Corporation to do the hauling for 75% of the scheduled charges, it has had nothing left over for its members. Business under its name is handled in the same way as that under the name of Oil Well Express Corporation. Freight is handled at the same dock. The same truck owners perform the line haul and receive the same compensation. The accounts of the two businesses are confused. Allocations of cost between them are indefinite.

In respect to the business conducted in the name of Oil Well Express Corporation shippers were induced to sign "contracts" in the attempt to give the service a private cast.⁽³⁾ The number of these and the circumstances of their procurement are such that the conclusion is inescapable that they represent merely a crude attempt to misbrand operations which in fact are of a common carrier nature.

That the line haul, whether the business was handled under one name or the other, was performed by various individual truck owners does not take the operations out from the inhibitions of the statute. Both Futhey and Mikesell were interrogated at length as to the costs and expenses of the service rendered under these various names and were unable to specify items of expense which would consume the 25% of the gross revenue retained for getting and managing the business, maintaining a dock, billing, collecting, etc. Indeed, it is clear from the record that the service netted substantial profits. Futhey and Mikesell, who claimed to be entitled to such profits as to business conducted under the name of Oil Well Express Corporation testified they had received none. Members of Pacific Shippers Association, as previously pointed out, received no refunds.

That a cease and desist order must issue is clear. Because of the transmutations the service has undergone, and the varying disguises set up to conceal its real nature and the persons responsible for it the order should be as comprehensive as may be under the record as developed. As to the defendant, E. R. Ball, there is a subsisting order directing him to cease operations and a second order is unnecessary. Futhey and Mikesell, so far as this record is concerned, are responsible for the operations, although the evidence leaves a strong suspicion that they are acting for some one else who enjoys the substantial profits of the service. While the two corporations, Oil Well Express Corporation and Pacific Shippers Association are manifestly shams, the order should be directed against them, as well as against Futhey and Mikesell.⁽⁴⁾ The remaining named defendants are truck owners. These trucks are regularly in use in the conduct of the service. They have no direct contractual relations with the shippers, their dealings being with those who arrange for and control the business. However, they do perform a very definite function in the service here found to be conducted in contravention of law, and the order should be directed against them.

^{4.} That said defendants "control" and "manage" the trucks of others in the rendition of common carrier service is clearly borne out by the evidence.

None of the defendants have obtained a certificate of public convenience and necessity from the Commission, nor have they any prior operative right to conduct such common carrier operation.

An order of this Commission finding an operation to be unlawful and directing that it be discontinued is in its effect not unlike an injunction issued by a court. A violation of such order constitutes a contempt of the Commission. The California Constitution and the Public Utilities Act vest the Commission with power and authority to punish for contempt in the same manner and to the same extent as courts of record. In the event a party is adjudged guilty of contempt, a fine may be imposed in the amount of $500.00, or he may be imprisoned for five (5) days, or both. C.C.P. Sec. 1218; Motor Freicht Terminal Co. v. Bray, 37 C.R.C. 224; re Boll and Haves, 37 C.R.C. 407; Wermuth v. Stamper, 36 C.R.C. 458; Pioneer Express Company v. Keller, 33 C.R.C. 571.

It should also be noted that under Section 8 of the Auto Truck Transportation Act (Statutes 1917, Chapter 213, as amended), a person who violates an order of the Commission is guilty of a misdemeanor and is punishable by a fine not exceeding $1000.00, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Likewise a shipper or other person who aids or abets in the violation of an order of the Commission is guilty of a misdemeanor and is punishable in the same manner.
