Presented by the KPMG Global Energy Institute

An Overview of IFRS in Natural Gas and Electric Utilities

Date: January 15, 2009

Time: 12:00 p.m. – 1:00 p.m. (EST)

Format: Audio Webcast

On behalf of the KPMG Global Energy Institute, the American Gas Association (AGA) and the Edison Electric Institute (EEI), you are invited to participate in an upcoming audio Webcast. Jon Wierda, KPMG Advisory Partner and National Leader for International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) in Power & Utilities, will launch a new series on IFRS with a panel discussion on conversion impacts in the natural gas and electric utility industry.

Joining Jon will be Cynthia Marple from AGA and Martin Wheatcroft from National Grid. Marple serves as the Director of Rates and Regulatory Affairs for AGA. Wheatcroft is Vice President of US Accounting Services and Controller for National Grid and formerly was head of accounting for the company's British utilities. The panel will also feature Bob Bergbauer, KPMG Advisory Principal and National Leader for Regulatory Services.

Discussion topics may include:

- History of regulatory accounting
- Challenges of supporting regulatory accounting within IFRS
- What does the conversion mean for natural gas and electric utilities
- Regulatory impact of IFRS
- Lessons learned from the marketplace
