CARE's Public Version of Reply Comments

Just got a voice message from Carol Brown, Chief of Staff for Assigned Cmmr. Peevey. The Commission intends to accept CARE's comments for filing but will, in her words, "give them no weight" - accordingly, she indicated that parties should not file responses.

I believe she stated that a ruling will be issued on this shortly.

My first response was mild outrage and the urge to file a motion to strike. But then I thought: why call more attention to what is otherwise an ineffective and untimely submission? Sometimes just leaving things like this alone allows them to die a quiet death, rather than becoming a focus of PUC attention. I can go either way depending on what others think, but I do believe that both approaches are worth considering. THANKS, Mike

I have a call in to ALJ Darling on this - procedurally, CARE's comments do not constitute a permissible reply as they neither address nor even mention our opening comments - I'll keep everyone posted
