Oh nice. Let's hope his suggestions are better than Andy's :)

Brian, here's the bar for Krakow advice:

"Nothing outside of the guidebooks is immediately coming to mind. The Jewish area is interesting. There's a good arts center there that's worth a visit.

I'd have to look at a guidebook to recall restaurants. There was a veggie one we liked east of the square, especially good when you get sick of Polish food. There was also a place with a nice backyard, garden eating area, south and west of the square. I could find them on a map, and will look if I can."

PS

What the hell is going on with this subject line?
