Oh, and one more thing. I should have said "am I willing to go to LA?" rather than "will I go to LA" at the end of my last note. I do not mean to imply my mind is made up. I want to hear from others.

Well, here goes, some random thoughts:

Pro going to LA:

--we'd have fun no matter where we are

--this is spontaneous and a loving gesture --we could go to the beach (Laguna is gorgeous!!!) and some fun restaurant down there. Or shop at South Coast Plaza --it sounds like Laura would be glad to see us and she could use a visit since she's in a very stressful time --we have this weekend free and who knows when we'd all have that again (likely a long time from now)

Con:

--a longer driving time, less relaxing time (7 hours plus each way) --we probably have to sleep on the floor. I doubt she has enough beds. Maybe we'd crash at a nearby hotel?

--some of us (or all, but that's unlikely for awhile) could go down and visit her a different weekend --we probably lose Trina who needs to go to Tahoe (I think?)

I am willing to go to LA. I like hanging out and catching up no matter where we are. Would I rather go to Tahoe -- Yes, it'd be more relaxing. Will I go to LA instead -- yes, because Laura probably needs this.

Do others have thoughts?

She's surprised and delighted that "her girls" would consider trekking down for a slumber party at her house. She said she would absolutely love it, as would Ethan (he apparently has a huge crush on Julie.) She's concerned that it could be quite an effort for us.

I'm game for whatever folks decide, flying Cheri down or going there. I agree let's get Val's opinion.

My heart goes out to Laura. Honestly, I'm game for driving down, flying Cheri down or proceeding as planned.

This is a hard one... Support can come in different ways. On one hand, it sounds great to all go down to support her. But is having us visit possibly risk Laura feeling like she's got to play hostess (though I know we're much more sufficient than what that phrase implies)? Does she need time to sort out what's going on? Would it be better for Ethan and Laura to have this time alone together especially having just moved to a new home, a new city and starting a new school? Does Ethan need all of us hanging around, after starting a new school and being out because he had a cold?

Laura's probably the only one who can answer these questions. Do we want to present her with the choice? Or, is that just one more thing she's got to think about?

Maybe Re can shed some light on this?

Okay, I'm just going to toss this out there, maybe it is crazy, but should we consider driving down to see Laura as a group instead of going to Tahoe? This would make logistics really difficult for Trina going to the conference in Tahoe, but it definitely seems like Laura could use our support. What do people think?

Sorry to have to break this, but Ron and I are having a serious disagreement/fight over custody. I even called out the orange county sherrif a few weeks ago to mediate a fight between us- it hasn't gotten any better.

the long and short of it is that the current MSA has me watching ethan wed through sat afternoon. Im not sure how I can make my friday flight and fulfill my duties under the legal document. I don't have any contacts down here in southern california to help me out. I also don't want to pull him out of school and fly him north with me-- he's been out sick for 2 days already.

Ron couldn't have picked a worse time to inflame me.

I can't put off what I've been putting off for 3 years--- the court battle over custody. While it may seem obvious to others to take this on, rest assured, this is an ugly thing to have to do. Our fights over Ethan bring out the worst in me.

I dont really see how I can make this work.....

I haven't been able to run so am up for any length hike to stretch my legs!

I will bring my air mattress again (thx for reminder, Linda). I will need a reminder on directions to Laura's parents house too. I can probably feel my way when I am there so I just need the exit name and the first street name to turn on.

See you in a week!

Dorothy's calendar shows busy until 12:30, but I think she might be in the same training that is now rescheduled to 1:30 (Dorothy, please confirm). Either way, depending on Trina's schedule, Sept 9 might work either at 12 or 12:30, so please keep it open for now. Once I hear back from Trina and Dorothy, I will schedule something. Hope it works, otherwise, I will try a later date. Linda, where would you like to go?

Laura, let us know if you have any plans to come to the bay area in the next couple of weeks or sometime soon. Otherwise, let's schedule a lunch to celebrate Linda's b-day and talk about Tahoe and then celebrate Laura's another time when she is available. Linda, what dates are good for you? Laura, if you cannot come to lunch, should we conference/Skype you for the Tahoe planning?!!
