Subject: Re: LNG classroom training, tour Tuesday

I'm crazy-booked this week, unfortunately.

Paul, Julie,

FYI and following up on our discussion last Thursday, the classroom training for the LNG mobile units will be tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. at the SFFD Station 51 in the Presidio. Following that, [Redacted], the Supervising Engineer for LNG Facilities will be onsite with the equipment at the San Francisco Gas Load Center starting about noon on Tuesday (12/14) and all day Wednesday 12/15. The SF Gas Load Center is located at the intersection of Illinois Street and 23rd Street. I think CPSD already has these dates and times but I just wanted to confirm.

If you or your staff plan to visit the Gas Load Center (and at this point, I understand [Redacted] and Terrance will both be at the classroom training and the Gas Load Center afterward), be aware there are Personal Protective Equipment requirements -- long pants with no cuffs, shoes that have ankle support, long sleeves. If you have your own hard hat, reflective vest, eye protection and gloves, it's best to bring those although there will be extras on hand.
