From:
RE: Energy Division's Recommendations on Multi-Family pilot

Reliable Energy Management, Inc. is concerned with the recommendation of the Energy Division (ED) for the affordable multi-family pilot. We feel this will not serve the neediest of our communities.

First: This proposed Pilot was not included in Decision 08-11-031, and does not appear to be either a Commission order or an ALJ order. Is ED ordering the utilities to include this Pilot project in their applications? If so, under what authority?

As you know, this first started when CHPC approached the state CSD and wanted a part of the state's ARRA money to be used exclusively for HUD housing. CSD is currently looking into a way for ARRA funding to be used for these energy efficiency measures proposed for HUD affordable housing. DOE and HUD have an agreement that ARRA weatherization can use an expedited eligibility to qualify these buildings. The affordable housing association was not satisfied with CSD's efforts so then submitted a proposal to PG&E and Energy Division to use LIEE money for HUD housing. This was protested, but, as we now see, that did not matter and now Energy Division is trying to go forward with a reduced version of CHPC's December proposal.

What we would like to have clarified:

1. Is the Energy Division's recommendations a result of secret meetings with unnamed "stakeholders," and are clearly based on CHPC's December proposal.
2. The network has previous experience with CHPC and knows they target their efforts to benefit HUD assisted housing, not the "unassisted" housing where most low-income households live.
3. That December proposal, and the recent Energy Division's Recommendations, contains numerous unexamined assertions which should be examined and tested in hearings before moving forward in any manner.
4. The Commission should have a fair, free, and transparent process to examine the proposals and remove the veil of secrecy so that the Commission can build a record of facts and evidence upon which the Commission can base a thoughtful decision.

Cc: Commissioner Simon
Commissioner Florio
Commissioner Sandoval
Commissioner Ferron
