Subject: SM Testing?

As part of our effort to get a full understanding of the recently disclosed SM issue, we would like to also understand the full scope of testing that's already been completed (and still planned to be done) by PG&E related to this issue. To avoid generating extra work, if there is an existing internal memo or presentation that summarizes the testing activity done by PG&E and the resulting findings (including how these findings confirm the root-cause already discussed), it would be sufficient to provide a copy of that to Energy Division. If this doesn't exist, please advise what would be the most efficient way to get this information. Please consider this request time-sensitive and expedite it as reasonably possible.

Thanks.
