Rich,
Thanks; I'll share this with the PG&E team preparing the plan.

Tom - Paul passed your e-mail to me.

You may be assured that is not our intention to slow PG&E's hydrotesting efforts. However, given the events in San Bruno, we would expect that you built a higher level of regulatory scrutiny from the CPUC into your hydrotesting/replacement workplan timeline. We'll be happy to meet with you tomorrow or Tuesday to discuss the issue, if necessary, but we're really focused on receiving and understanding your testing and replacement plan for the segments you plan to replace this month, followed by the plan by which you will pursue testing and replacing the balance of the segments that make-up the first 152 miles of your efforts this year.
