Subject: Status of Hydrotest Documentation Materials

Trina and Jennifer- folks over here are starting to get a bit anxious about why we have not started receiving the documentation packages following the hydrotests, especially for the May tests. I don't have a good answer as to the hold up. Seems to me that it might take a week or so following each test to put the documents together into a neat package, but longer than that people start asking questions about what is up and why it wouldn't be ready.

Thoughts on when we'll start seeing these? It would be really helpful for us to have things in hand within a week of the tests because we get asked questions about what is happening, what pressure it was tested at, what times, etc. and we can't answer.

Thanks.
