Not totally all clear what's going on. It appears SCE's 500KV lines down, leading to San Onofre tripping and no imports from PV. A drop of about 4000 MW. San Diego has been island off.

The weather is cooling off. We are not completely out of the wood. The southern CA units need to be brought back on in an orderly fashion to avoid further tripping of other units (including ours).

Tried calling your cell but you didn't answer. I explained you're in BART station.
