Line 300B, backbone, near Bakersfield, testing pressure was at 95% SMYS. I don't have more yet

Thanks. Steve, I am out of the office this morning for family medical. If you could help Shilpa track down any other info in this asap, I would appreciate it. I want to be proactive about letting the CPSD staff know. But not until we have some basic data - how big is the line, how did it fail, any collateral damage? It looked like it bulged from the pictures.

When we get more info it probably makes sense to coordinate with the external constituent owners - maybe Jessica can coordinate a quick call?. But the CPUC must hear this from PG&E first. I think Laura Doll is back, too - she can help.
