Subject: Articles with PG&E logo

Jennifer/Brian: The other day when we came to the PG&E building for a CCA related meeting, we noticed that a number of articles (including jackets, caps, tool boxes) with PG&E logo were on sale next to the security desk. We got concerned that some bad person could buy these articles and find way into somebody's house under the pretext of being a PG&E repair person. Were wondering if you had thought about this possibility. Personally, I do not think any body but PG&E employees should be allowed to have these articles.
