Thanks for looking at this. Ill confirm the company info tmrw. He's putting a bio together, and ill have bios for nick, ben and kirk too. We will do a runthrough with ted on monday. He is a true field guy and he's nervous about presenting. It isn't anything he's done before. I'm hoping it will be a relatively friendly audience.

I like the idea of a fairly detailed agenda. Ill take another look at it to make sure we can deliver. Thanks again for the feedback.

Looks pretty good. Can you confirm company name, is it JANX Non-Destructive Testing? I'm trying to track through, looks like that company was acquired by ApplusRTD (which also recently acquired Kiefner and Associates),. And can you give me a bio for Finkenbinder?

I'm not sure how I would cut his presentation down.

I'm thinking that when I put out the agenda, I might use the detailed version so people really understand the scope of the presentations.

Michelle

Just wanted to send over the FIRST DRAFT of info I got today from the weld verification guy, Ted Finkenbinder.

My reaction is that it is good stuff -- especially the pictures -- but I wanted to get your reaction if you have a few minutes to look at it. We will get you the "whole package" of presentation materials we'll use by COB Friday, but this section is the most different from anything you will have seen from PG&E before so I wanted to give you a little more time to look at it.

I told him I thought that 40 slides would be too many and that he might combine some of the training/qualification level slides. But I would be reluctant to cut photos.

Hope your week isn't insane.

Look forward to seeing you tomorrow afternoon.

Laura
