By the way, I meant to but hadn't yet had the chance to comment on the good news about Larry. That's excellent that he'll be here this summer. Maybe he can meet Rosa then, if not before!

Have a great week off next week.

Julie

I am still loving it. I'm sure that will end at some point, but I'm definitely still in a honeymoon period. The gas stuff is crazy, as you would imagine, but I get to seize upon tiny pieces, like the "hydrotest symposium" next week, and I get a sense of accomplishment out of facilitating stuff. I have already been here 5 months!

Larry will be teaching at Berkeley this summer, so we are really pleased about that. They made him an offer last week, on the same day that he was preparing an email description of what he could teach but hadn't yet emailed it. So they seem very interested in him, which is nice, and he'll be here from June through early August. I'm hoping that we can get a week in Marfa in late May and then again in August, but I suppose something could get in the way of that. But Brian, Meredith, Erik, Trina all are so totally supportive of the priority of personal commitments that I'm thinking I'll be able to do it.

My cousin Nancy (in Suisun) died last Sunday and I keep thinking I will hear about a funeral this week. Haven't yet. I'm sad that I didn't see her since I returned, and she didn't even know I was here. BUT I can stay in touch with her daughters, and she had been struggling with diabetes and then cancer for several years. She died peacefully at home, so that is good, as we always say.

I was in Austin last weekend for a memorial for Robert Floyd, the 63 year old friend who is the reason I came to CA in the first place. Longer story about how great the memorial service was, but a high point was a full hour performance by Lyle Lovett in a very intimate setting.

I actually am pretty swamped. It will get worse starting next week and then until mid-April. I have both the PGC/EPIC proceeding and parts of the EE proceeding, both of which are complex. I'm getting close to having some of my more minor "hazing" proceeding assignments out of the way before the end of March, which hopefully will help. But juggling a lot right now.

How about you? How goes it on gas at PG&E?

J.

I read some of the outside comments and it certainly sounds like a huge battle is brewing between Shames and some of his inside folks, aka "whistleblowers." I'm afraid this is the kind of thing that happens at nonprofits with strong egos like Shames'. Glad this isn't either of our problems right now!

Are you swamped these days?

I've been seeing some of these press reports, but don't really understand all the twists and turns. I also don't know Michael Shames all that well, but he's never seemed particularly likeable, to say the least. Last night was an odd mix of people.

Geez, did you see this about UCAN disbanding?

Interesting event last night -- glad I didn't have to talk to Amory Lovins!
