

From: Fitch, Julie A.
Sent: 5/29/2012 8:44:10 PM
To: Doll, Laura (/O=PG&E/OU=CORPORATE/CN=RECIPIENTS/CN=LRDD)
Cc:
Bcc:
Subject: Re: cont'd.

You are SO right, of course!

Hope you are enjoying baseball and not freezing - it seems cold tonight. We are watching French open tennis...

J.

Sent from my iPhone

On May 29, 2012, at 5:34 PM, "Doll, Laura" <LRDD@pge.com> wrote:

Here's the thing. We know that people SHOULD leave the CPUC but they usually DON'T, right? I can't imagine staying someplace where I didn't feel productive and contributing (even if that was questionable!), but here we have two examples of people who are (a) very well educated, (b) capable of good external communication, (c) with enough experience to be able to figure out some things that are needed, but they stay and stay and nobody will make demands of them or push them out the door. Shannon E comes to mind – think how we agonized! MP won't do it. And obviously Paul won't either.

I don't think they'll leave until someone DELIVERS another job to them, and I put the chances of that very, very low.

Now I'm leaving! We are going to a Giants game tonight. Got cheap seats through the employee organization and it was on my list for the summer to go to at least one game . . .