Joel, thanks for the message. Yes, it would be ok for you to talk directly to Erik, without my involvement. I don't see any need for any limitations on these conversations.

Erik: Thanks for your phone message. I have seen the results of our staff's audit as well as the letter you received from the Board of Claims. I am about to head out on vacation, and when I return towards the end of August, I plan to discuss this situation with my management, with the aim of being ready to discuss numbers with PG&E sometime in early September. Does that timetable work for you?

[Redacted] Since you are assigned to this matter, I am trying not to communicate with Erik without your involvement. If it is OK for me to talk directly to Erik without your involvement, please let me know, and if so, what limitations there might be on such conversations.

Thanks.
