Subject: Follow-up on Overland Financial Analysis Testimony

Travis:

This is a follow-up to my note of October 5 related to the Overland Financial Analysis Testimony. PG&E appreciates that Ms. Prosper and the News and Public Information Office removed the document from the website. If you would like to post a new version, I have attached another redaction of the document that does not present the issues I described in my email.

<<...>>

I would also like to note that the issues I identified below did not extend to the entire document. Specifically, much of the data contained in the charts was not capable of being revealed.

Please let me know if you have questions.

Thank you.

Travis:

One of our consultants brought to our attention that the redacted version of the Overland Financial Health testimony posted on the CPUC's website can be manipulated to reveal the redacted content. Specifically, text of the document can be "cut and pasted" and downloaded into a new WORD document. Through a change in font color the redacted text comes through. I tried this myself, and, unfortunately, it works. As you know, this material was redacted by Overland rather than PG&E.

We request that you take the document off the CPUC's website immediately and address this technical issue.

I have copied Terri Prosper on this note. I communicated with Ms. Prosper on a posting issue in the months following San Bruno and she was extremely helpful in addressing our concerns.

Thank you for your cooperation,

Michelle Wilson
