That is a conversation for another day. Many of us believe she is a DRA mole.

>>> Don't worry Brian -- I will certainly be looking at both (all?) sides, my feeble attempts at raising your blood pressure notwithstanding. In fact, after the briefing from your senior management this afternoon (no GRC discussion), I'm eager to dig in and see just how different this one may be. Also, I noticed in your application the suggestion for an early workshop to walk through the application for the parties -- an excellent idea and something that I would try very hard to attend myself (you could coordinate with Joan on timing to make sure that happens). We are already scheduling an initial internal kickoff meeting with the case team, and I'm inviting ALJ Darling to share with us her "lessons learned" and insights about where the time lapses occurred in Edison and how to avoid them here. Hopefully the workshop could aside a few minutes for any needed discussion of data issues and modeling coordination with Energy Division -- I think that sometimes those types of issues can slow things down more than the substance. We can never anticipate every contingency, but will at least try to practice a little "risk management."

>>> I will keep an open mind about individual meetings -- the equal time thing is the big worry here, but if it seems necessary then we'll figure out a way to deal with it. My advisors do a good job of sharing though (and I always review the presentations), so that in the end may prove to be adequate. We'll see Happy weekend, Mike

>>> Mike - I do have one request and ask that you be open to having us come in and talk to you, not just your advisors, to brief you on the case and update you in important matters. This case is very different than what you've seen before with a risk based approach, third party evaluation by the Commission and a focus on safety. I think it will be critical that you see both sides.
