Oh. My. God.

They assume jaywalking?

Fyi. More to come, I hope.

Do I seem terse? Blame the thumb keyboard.

Please note that the email doesn't say anything about whether the woman was jaywalking, just 'in the intersection'. Even when you have the light, drivers don't pay attention, run red lights etc. So, even when you have the walk sign, it's always best to still look left and right (and sometimes over your shoulder) before crossing. You can still get hit even when you're following the rules.

Been there. Happy to still be here. Certainly not the way you want to stop traffic!

Please be extra cautious when you cross the street. A woman was killed at the corner of Beale & Market this afternoon. Please do not jaywalk.

Fyi — I saw the aftermath from a distance, and it was extremely sad and unnerving...
