Hahahaha, excellent. Let's chat this am. I am travelling to phx the rest of this week.

Do I seem terse? Blame the thumb keyboard.

Indeed.

Btw: every time I visit the credit union I take the opportunity to jaywalk across Beale mid-block. So much safer!

Yeah, any bad event is an opportunity for the scold. I have to agree with Valerie on this one.

Oh. My. God.

They assume jaywalking?

Please note that the email doesn't say anything about whether the woman was jaywalking, just 'in the intersection'. Even when you have the light, drivers don't pay attention, run red lights etc. So, even when you have the walk sign, it's always best to still look left and right (and sometimes over your shoulder) before crossing. You can still get hit even when you're following the rules.

Been there. Happy to still be here. Certainly not the way you want to stop traffic!

Valerie

Fyi — I saw the aftermath from a distance, and it was extremely sad and unnerving...
