Hi Trina,

It looks like the only time available would be 3:30 to 5:00. If you come here, we could meet during that time period. If we go there, we couldn't start until 4:00 and we might go to 5:30. We're not interested in a technical bill calculator discussion. We've already had PG&E give us a fairly extensive walk-through of the model. We're more interested in the big picture issues of transitioning to time varying pricing.

The people attending would be the three shown on the "cc" list above and me.

Chris, if the times proposed by Trina work on our side, could you confirm with her please -- and put in our outlook calendars?

Hey there, hope you're enjoying your snow trip! Not sure if you're checking your email while you're out; if so, the 25th in the afternoon gets the most "yes" votes from folks here. One thing that would be helpful to know is how many people you're bringing – do you envision a smaller group conversation or are you looking to include more folks? And is it safe to assume this is not a technical bill calculator conversation, but more clarifying each of our respective big-picture visions for an end state and what a transition might look like to get there? Either kind of conversation is fine, but it's different sets of people I'd bring depending on what kind of conversation you want to have. I assumed it's a big-picture oriented conversation from the one topic you told me you wanted to cover, but I know better than to assume. Let me know,

TAH

Trina:

Nice to chat yesterday. When I get back from Colorado, let's try to find a time to meet up in person. It's been too long!

The core part of our rates team (plus me) looks available to meet the following dates:

<!--[if !supportLists]-->•□□□□□□□□ <!--[endif]-->2/20 from 1:30 to 3:00,

<!--[if !supportLists]-->•□□□□□□□□ <!--[endif]-->2/25: any time in the P.M.,

<!--[if !supportLists]-->•□□□□□□□□ <!--[endif]-->3rd choice, 2/22: any time in the P.M.

Let me know if any of these work for right folks on your team.
