The Greenlining Institute supports the extension request of at least four weeks.

On May 19 the ALJ issued a Ruling setting May 1 as the due date for rate design proposals, with comments on proposals due June 3. TURN will likely request an extension of these deadlines. The current schedule does not provide sufficient time to a) run the bill calculators, and b) obtain bill impact analyses directly from utilities for rate design options not supported by the calculators. Additionally, TURN faces other procedural deadlines which limit our work on these issues. TURN will seek an extension of four weeks.

Pursuant to Rule 11.6 TURN seeks input from the 'active' parties concerning your position on the extension request. Please let me know by COB this Friday, if you a) support the proposed extension, b) oppose the proposed extension, c) are neutral, or d) support an extension for a different time period.

Thank you in advance for your responses.
