General,

Jane and I spoke this evening and we strongly recommend staying with the three panels. A lot of work has gone into the speaker arrangements, and we and the "Hall boys" think the diversity of panel topics and speakers is very attractive: (1) Culture and climate, (2) leading safety as a regulatory agency, and (3) elements of effective emergency response. Those are powerful themes (you set forth), and when you look at how they flow and the timing of the second day(830 to 1230) it seems to work well.

We talked today about panel moderators: Paul Clanon for the regulatory one wednesday morning and, as I mentioned, a media person for the emergency response one. The suggestion for the third -- culture/climate -- is Congresswoman Spier's chief of staff. The thinking is that could be a good way to have some balanced legislative representation/engagement.

I know you'll be thinking about all this over the weekend. If you have any difficulty opening the attachment, here's an overview of the agenda:

Day 1, May 7

1:30 Opening remarks by General Jack Hagan, Director of the CA PUC's Safety & Enforcement Division

2:00 Keynote by Chair Hersman

First panel: Defining a Safety Climate and Culture

Jody Bridges, Naval Aviation Safety School
Paul Levy, former Chair MA Public Utilities Comm and a nationally recognized leader of organizational change in the health care industry and public sector
Alaska Air COO
Nick Stavropoulos, Sr. VP, Gas Ops, PG&E and formerly of National

Grid

Reception, Dinner, and Evening Keynote: Captain Sully Sullenberger, former US Air Captain (Miracle on the Hudson)

Day 2, May 8

Panel 2: Safety Regulation – a shared responsibility

Commissioner Michel Florio, CA PUC
Carl Wood, former CPUC Commissioner and current National Director of Governmental and Regulatory Affairs, Utility Workers Union of America
Chris Johns, President, PG&E
Dennis Arriola, President, SoCal Gas
Carl Weimer, ED, Pipeline Safety Trust

Panel 3: Elements of an Effective Pipeline Emergency Response

Joanne Hayes-White, Chief, San Francisco Fire Department
Jerry Schmitz, VP, Gas Engineering, SouthWest Gas
Susan Fleming, Director, Physical Infrastructure, GAO and author of recent GAO study on response time measurement
Tom Butters, Deputy Administrator, PHMSA (former asst chief with Fairfax Fire Dept and Dir of the Chemical Transportation Emergency Center.
He also worked for FEMA)

Its a good lineup. We are now working on lists of key issues/questions for the panels to address.

Also, I looked online at the Marines Memorial Club online and it looks interesting! They have rooms large enough for the Tuesday dinner, and it might be nice to have that setting for Captain Sullenberger's appearance. We will check on it as an option.

I really hope the venue holds for both days as I don't like the CPUC auditorium for the panel format. Hope we can get this resolved next week, even with Kim gone.

I am going to see if Aaron can find a little time for Jane and me to talk with you Monday afternoon before you head to Pismo. We must get your concurrence on panel structure asap.

Oh -- we may use a travel agent to handle lodging and transportation for the speakers so that all expenses are tracked centrally and are easier for us to divvy up at the end.

And when we are sure of the site we will figure out the best coffee options.

Hope you get a few hours' rest this weekend! I'm around sunday afternoon if you want to call.

Thanks

Laura

Subject: CPUC Safety Symposium Invitation list 031513.xlsx

General Hagan,

Here is the latest draft agenda, speakers and invitees for the CPUC symposium. All speakers with the exception of 2 that are in progress are confirmed. We are now 7 weeks from the symposium, and it is starting to take shape. Invitations to confirm the speakers, and to invitees to hold the date should go out early next week (Monday).

We are forming some draft questions for the panels/speakers to help them prepare and will be forwarding the information to you sometime next week.

If you have comments, or need additional information, Laura or I, will try to assist,

Thank you,

Jane
