I think they should send them to Liza so she has them and can give them to whomever ends up doing the production at Milton Marks.

Should they email them to me or to you?

I don't want to keep loading stuff on to you, but you will recall my general technological cluelessness.

Although I have discouraged it, they want them . . .

How should I advise them to bring their presentations: (1) email them ahead of time; (2) on a stick; (3) some other way I don't even know about?
