Thanks for the nice note Pete, and for letting so many of your staff attend yesterday. I enjoyed the speakers and the dialogue, and was grateful everything came together.

We did learn about the cpuc's policy on accepting food if the meeting was off-site, but unfortunately we learned it just before the meeting. I hope your team ultimately felt the issue was handled alright at the meeting. In the future, we'll know how to handle this issue should it arise again.

Thanks again for putting together the workshop yesterday. You put together some terrific panels, and I got a tonne out of it and I am hearing from our staffers who attended that they did as well! I recognize that a lot of hard work and “logistics stress” went into pulling this off – know that your efforts did not go unappreciated over here.

Thanks a lot!

p.s. Head’s up that our conflicts attorneys have informed us that your note for public officials below is not accurate for CPUC employees. We are not allowed to accept lunch as a gift from the utilities we regulate UNLESS the meeting/conference is at a utility’s premises. In this case, our options are only to decline or reimburse –reporting is not an option. I will be letting your counterparts at the other utilities know this as well, though I recognize this issue rarely, if ever, rears its head.

Subject: April 24th workshop – “Building a More Energy Efficient Future: A National Perspective”

Hi,

This is a reminder about this Wednesday’s “Building a More Energy Efficient Future: A National Perspective” workshop. At this workshop Energy Efficiency experts from across the country will share ideas and best practices to help inform California as we start thinking forward to the 2015 EE cycle. We’ve lined up an impressive group of national experts in an effort to drive innovation and best practices in moving us forward in growing and improving California’s Energy Efficiency market and the agenda is attached below.

A note for public officials. Acceptance of food and beverages at this event by a public official will constitute acceptance of a reportable gift.
