I'm fine with any location, but I do have to be back by 1:30 for agenda review, so let's plan on a little early start?

You're sweet – he is very much in the market for a 21+ year old who will understand that he doesn't intend to work in a grocery store all his life, without a car.

Spending time with him was eye opening for me. It is really hard to make your way alone in the world these days, especially with no college degree and no basic understanding of how money works. My heart races around him whenever we get to those discussions. But he is trying hard to change, so that's good progress.

The 3rd it is then. We probably really shouldn't go across the street, right?

I could pick you both up and we could go . . . I'm not sure where!
