Yeah, txting while riding is not a good thing, I see the young ones do it. Just so's you know, I have to get off the phone at 453p to make the train I want to catch.

I'm actually really working on disconnecting. I've been really bad. The biggest upside is the Jury Duty deal makes me put my phone away for extended periods. I think my brain really has been getting better at concentrating by simply not having the blasted phone in my paws all the time.

I realized I should take stock when I was riding my bike and texting. What a dumb fuck thing to do.
