Wow, I gotta ask you about that. I presume that there are different levels of enhancement. I mean a knife can't be worse than a revolver (not usually considered a semi auto).

Different case than mine...

Yeah, CALCRIM has different enhancements for assaults and attempted murder (and murder) based on weapon used. For my case, it was "with semi-automatic firearm." One of those silly things that sounds scary and makes it into law ... but seriously, how many breach loading weapons and muskets are there? I suppose a shotgun wouldn't qualify ... but if these knuckleheads had shotguns, they might have at least hit their target.

A knife is an enhancement? The provocation quote is great, I hope he says it at trial, too.

Wow. Kelvin really is a true believer! I guess with Judge Reordan doing murders all day every day, they cross paths a lot. There are only 12 courts in the building, anyways. Here's another fun one!

I think they do. Just read from the cb project. I am worried this is distracting you from the hard work of forgetting the whole thing!
