You're right, 410p. Let me know by 345p if you think you'll make it onto that boat, and I'll meet you on the boarding ramp. If you don't show, we can both take the bart. It's an option play.

I've never heard of anything being removed from the dashboard.

What do you think of my revised plan – ferry if you can make it, then cab to LM Bart?

One of my few successes at PGE was to talk to vp folks and get items in the dashboard eliminated. It was busy work, but folks were too scared to ask, "hey, is anyone looking at this shit?"

Meredith freed us from the project-based timesheet they had us filling out. Turns out they were not using the data and were estimating time spent on project rather than using the detailed timesheet. Fuckers.

Subject: Time Sheets: Regulatory Relations

Team,

We are making an improvement to time sheet reporting for Regulatory Relations. Going forward, please charge any productive time on your time sheets to the project Regulatory Relations. You do not need to enter different proceedings or activities.

Please also continue to enter your non-productive time, such as sick, vacation, holidays and floating holidays and also any time that should be charged to a below the line account. These exceptions must be reported on time sheets for compliance purposes.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks,

Meredith
