Did you hear about the hearing a few weeks ago? Rod Wright was grilling CPUC staffer about how is it that an employee who threw a book at a window got suspension and was required to go to some training, while a senior (general) received no reprimands for carrying a firearm and displaying a knife. I don't know how that was answered.

Oh, and as typing, I just heard another reminder that the safety team needs to go to the auditorium. Like clockwork, bitches!

Oh, and in the CPUC's new safety culture, we just had a fire-drill. The "safety team" is having a debrief in the auditorium. How do I know? Because I just heard the announcement on the PA system requesting the safety team to show up.

As I understand it, think they still don't have a plan for folks in wheelchairs. That sucking sound you hear isn't NAFTA.
