this may be my favorite ever xmas song and my favorite version. He does as aside near the end that captures the sadness of the song. It's funny that now that I've listened to it many times, I realize that one line that was changed to make it happier (at fucking Sinatra's request) -- from 'until then we'll muddle through somehow' to 'hang a star upon the highest bough' -- actually makes the song even sadder. Just great. Working on my delivery to copy this.
