Wasn't the fat, was lack of muscle, I think.

But my new 29er weighs 22#, w pedals. So there's that.

I got down to 142# last year, but I was hungrier, and and I don't think I was as strong as I am now. My times up Diablo were pretty swift, though. (consistently under an hour up N. gate)

It is funny, the process is so slow, it is hard to notice three months' change -- but it is noticeable to others. Takumi gave you props -- he noted that you were one of the few folks he's seen lose a significant chunk of weight and keep it off.
