OK so if I wanted to say PG&E has X categories for electric customers with various required or optional features" I'm trying to plug in the "X". So in your example, E-6 has the E-RSMART option, as does E-1. But counting only but all the "core" (??) rates like E-1, E-6 etc., is there a finite number like 35 or 65?

Thanks

Here is the response I got back from our rate design folks. So yes, these are rate options for our various types of customers. Let me know if you need anything else.

John-

Yes, this is the link to our electric tariffs. Some of these, though, are riders to other tariffs (so customers can be on more than one). For example, Schedule E-RSMART is a rider that lets you choose to be on SmartRate (where you pay more on even days during certain hours, but also earn credits in other hours). So a customer could be on E-1 and also on E-RSMART (or, alternatively, could be on E-6 and E-RSMART). That said, it is indeed a list of all the rates (standard and options) available to customers.

John: I want to say "PG&E has "x" electric rate tariffs" and cite to the link above. A quick look appears to suggest that these are all of the rate options for the various types of electric customers. True fact??
