Lou,

Please find attached a copy of the Tolling Agreement with Dynegy that they reference in their comments. As you can see, PG&E paid fixed fees for Capacity, variable O&M, and Start Up costs.

The seller (Dynegy) is responsible for operating and maintaining the plant and all of its associated expenses (which would include station power).

Please don't share this material, as it contains actual pricing info.

Hi Redacted

I have a quick follow up question and request for you:

Please send me a description (possibly from your tariff) of the RA tolling agreements that we spoke about?

I want to make sure I characterize it correctly so that I understand how it relates to station power charges.

I just left you a message about this.

Thanks,

Lou

Redacted and Erik,

Are either of you available this afternoon for a short discussion (any time after 3:00 today) on tolling agreements re: station power?

I have a few questions.
