

This KOP is located within Chino Hills State Park on a hiking/equestrian trail and fire road that connects Telegraph Canyon Trail to Raptor Ridge Trail, looking southeast toward the Horse Camp. Foreground and middleground features include rolling, undeveloped hills covered with native grasses and non-native mustard, which, when in bloom, is very scenic. Existing 220-kV double circuit and 500-kV single circuit transmission lines are very visible on the skyline ridge, and the trail crosses directly under these transmission lines and towers.

Overall Visual Sensitivity: high. For visitors to Chino Hills State Park in general and KOP-South-23 specifically, the high viewer exposure, high viewer concern, and high visual quality lead to a high overall visual sensitivity of the visual setting and viewing characteristics.

Figure A-59a
Existing Conditions
for KOP-South-23
Chino Hills State Park Trail,
CHSP (Alternative 4, Route A, Segment 8A)

Source: Lee Anderson, 2008.